

PACE Society & AESHA are SEEKING PARTICIPANTS for a new Arts-Based Research Project

- Do you have experience as a sex worker using online/digital technology to work or advertise?
- Has your sex work been impacted by the COVID-19 and/or the overdose pandemic?
- Are you interested in creating artwork to express your experience with sex work during the pandemics?
- Are you willing to discuss your experiences of workplace health, safety and wellbeing in a 1-2 hour interview?

We particularly want to hear from:

- Sex workers who use online/digital technology to work or advertise services
- Black, Indigenous, People of Colour
- Sex workers of all genders and 2S/LGBTQ people

Participants will receive up to $200 in honorariums for their time and artwork.

For more information, please contact:
jennie.pearson@cgshe.ubc.ca

Principal Investigator: Dr. Andrea Krüsi, Assistant Professor, Medicine, UBC; Research Scientist, Centre for Gender & Sexual Health Equity

Community Partners: Kingsway Community Station; Health Initiative for Men (HIM); PIVOT Legal Society

CENTRE FOR GENDER & SEXUAL HEALTH EQUITY

THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

vancouver foundation